What We're Reading This Month
This month’s The Professor Is In Book Club title:

Meacham, a presidential biographer of long-standing who won a Pulitzer for his 2009 book on Andrew Jackson, casts an eye across American history for its most nerve-wracking times and then examines how politicians and activists helped the nation pull through each crisis. Though it sometimes feels as if the author is recounting how the country used to walk uphill to school both ways in the snow, his research is impeccable and fascinating and reminds us that romanticizing the past prevents us from both learning and drawing strength from it to face present and future challenges.

Barbara at Deerwood is reading:

The narrator in this suspenseful, exciting book is agoraphobe Anna Fox, who has a Ph.D. in child psychology and a Nikon D5500 camera with Opteka telephoto lens that she uses to spy on her neighbors. When she sees what she thinks is a murder, no one believes her, kicking off a plot that unfolds and changes right up until an ending that will surprise you. I cannot give too much of the action away but this is one of the best books I have read in a while, and a great excuse to (re)watch Hitchcock’s Rear Window with Jimmy Stewart and Grace Kelly.

New in the Archive This Month

We’ve got all the papers

Everyone knows The Campus Voice, but have you heard of Alpha, the College’s first newspaper? Launched in 1967, this student-run publication is now hard to find copies of, but we managed to locate and digitize several copies you can find here. We’ve also uploaded an entire collection of the Selected Papers from the International Conference of Teaching and Learning, which you can find here.
